Introduction

There is a saying that Munich is the secret capital of Germany . . . but officially Munich is the cultural center as well as the gay, picturesque and colorful capital of Bavaria.

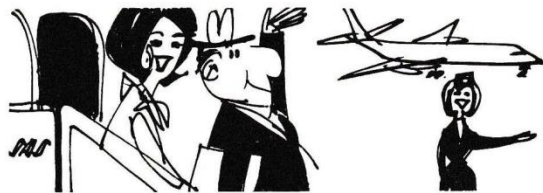

Today's modern city, which was host to the Olympic Summer Games in 1972, has many fine buildings, excellent shopping streets, squares and fountains, restaurants and concert halls. Among its famous sights are the Old Pinakothek, one of the seven great art galleries in the world and the Deutsches Museum, the largest museum of science and technology in Europe.

The University of Munich with more than 24,000 students plus 9,000 students of the Technical High School and another 2,000 at the various Max-Planck-Institutes of Technology and Science also make the city an important educational center. Munich also hosts the famous Goethe-Institute.

Munich was founded in 1158 by Duke Henry the Lion who established a market place and mint, and built a bridge across the river Isar, but its name derives from an older settlement of monks – Munichen – who probably came from the medieval Tegernsee Monastery.

In the 13th century it became a city and the residence of the Wittelsbach princes. Munich's great art collections were started in the 16th century by Duke Albert V of Bavaria. In the Napoleonic era it became the capital of the Bavarian kingdom and in the reign of Ludwig I the university was transferred to Munich from Landshut and many buildings were constructed. The cultural life continued to flourish particularly during the reign of Maximilian II and Ludwig II.

At a junction of European railroads, highways and air-routes, Munich is also a major commercial center – bright, busy and prosperous – but for the visitor it is a happy mixture of brassy beer halls and elegant art galleries. The main square – officially Karlsplatz, but always called Stachs – is one of Europe's most hectic intersections with traffic signals controlled through television at police headquarters nearby. But in the Englischer Garden it is possible to ride in a horse-drawn carriage in the heart of the city!

Munich is Lederhosen and aproned skirts plus a community of highly skilled engineers making precision and optical instruments. It is world-renowned theaters such as "Cuvilliés" and "National" and beer cellars like "Hofbräuhaus" and "Mathäuser". It is brass bands and sausages, palaces and churches, quaint mechanical clocks and a zoo with over 10,000 animals.

First and foremost Munich is "gemütlich" with a gaiety which spills over to its visitors, and innumerable festivals throughout the year help to maintain the easy atmosphere. There are summer music festivals, trade and food fairs, beer festivals and the Fasching, a winter carnival.

But the Oktoberfest from late September to early October lasting two weeks is the big "fun" event of the year and if you are lucky enough to visit Munich during this period you will have a chance to take part in a festival which is over 160 years old – a mammoth public party!

Your arrival in Munich

On arrival at Riem Airport, after control formalities, proceed to the terminal buildings where you can change your money or cash traveler's cheques. You can also exchange currency at any bank in the city or at the exchange office at the Main Railway Station which is open from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The monetary unit in Germany is the Deutsche Mark (DM) divided into 100 Pfennig (Pf).

Outside the terminal building you will find a bus to the Main Railway Station the fare being DM2.50. Porters are available to carry luggage at DM1 per piece. Hand-carts for luggage are available, fee DM1. Taxi transportation to the city center will cost approximately DM8 to 10.

If you are continuing your journey with SAS from Munich please reconfirm your onward reservations at the SAS Office located at 11–12 Ottostrasse (tel. 59 74 35-37). If you have any problems during your stay in Munich do not hesitate to contact the local SAS office. Just drop in Monday to Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. to 12 noon or telephone. The staff members speak Scandinavian, English, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Czech and, of course, Bavarian!

Hotels

Munich has over 130 hotels, a number of them first class and more than 300 guest houses, pensions and inns, but accommodation is still in great demand due to numerous events and it is wise to reserve rooms in advance. You can do this by contacting your travel agent or SAS, for either can offer you, through the facility of the SAS Travel Planning Service, detailed information on first and tourist class hotels.

Should you, however, arrive in Munich without having booked accommodation, the SAS office or the Tourist Information Office (Fremdenverkehrsamt) at Riem Airport or at the Main Railway Station will take care of you.

Restaurants and cuisine

Bavarian food is savory, substantial and delicious. You will find the local dishes are often served best in the beer halls. Munich specialties to ask for are "Spanferkel mit Knödel" – roast suckling pig with potato dumplings, "Sauerbraten" which is sour, roast beef, fried and creamed Schnitzels, veal steaks, "Haxe" which is roasted veal or pork and "Leberkäs", a meat loaf, eaten with mustard, pretzels – and, of course, beer.

Bavaria is famous for its sausages, the most popular being "Schweinswürstl" (pork sausages) eaten with sauerkraut or potato salad – and "Weisswürste" (veal sausages) eaten with sweet mustard, pretzels, and beer.

Among the top class restaurants are:

Continental (D3)
5 Max Joseph Strasse

Of course, a visit to Munich would be incomplete without having tried a "mass", equal to 1 liter of beer, in one of the various big beer halls. Visit the Mathäuser-Bierstadt at Bayerstrasse near Stachus, the most modern of Munich's beer halls, or Bürgerbräu at Kaufingerstrasse. You will also find good Bavarian dishes at moderate prices served at both places.

If you feel like going "foreign", Munich has a wide choice of restaurants and you will find many national dishes "home-cooked" in this city:

The city on your own

Some of the more significant sights (with map reference in brackets) are:

Karlstor (C5), the oldest of the four remaining city gates, originally bordering the "West", now located at the busiest square in Munich, The Karlsplatz (Stachus).

Frauenkirche (E5), the Dom or Cathedral of Munich. Seriously damaged during World War II, this well-known landmark of Munich has been thoroughly restored. Its exterior, in the late Gothic style, is built on the original lines, but the interior is a delightful blend of old and new.

Neues Rathaus (F6). The New City Hall at Marienplatz was constructed between 1867 and 1908. The architects made every effort to imitate the Gothic style – decide for yourself whether they were successful. If possible try to be in front of the City Hall at 11 a.m., to watch the “Glockenspiel”, and “Schäffler-tanz”. East of the New Town Hall you will see the Old Town Hall originally built in 1470–74. At the end of the street called “Tal” (valley) is the Isartor originally bordering the “East”.

Theatinerkirche (E4). This church was built in the 17th century on the pattern of the baroque church of San Andrea della Valle in Rome. The front of the church with its towers is a later rococo addition.

Feldherrnhalle (F4). Opposite the Theatinerkirche stands this monument: a free imitation of the Loggia dei Lanzi in Florence, it was built in 1840. Here you find a cozy cellar restaurant (Feldherrnkeller).

Hofgarten (G3). A lovely garden, formerly the Royal Garden of the Bavarian Princes.

Cuvilliés Theater (G5), the old Residenz Theater, is among the most beautiful sights in Munich. It belongs to the Bayerisches Staatstheater. This rococo jewel, a work of Francois Cuvilliés, was rebuilt and opened on the occasion of the city’s 800th anniversary in 1958. Although it is now located in a different part of the spacious residence, the reproduction in every detail remains true to Cuvilliés’ masterpiece, with the use of the original interior decorations, the majority of which had been preserved.

National Theater (G5), adjacent to the residence, is the home of the famous Bavarian State Opera. Completely destroyed in 1944, the rebuilding planning started in 1954 and the opening was held again in 1963. The annual Munich Opera Festival takes place here in the summer .

The Münchener Hofbräuhaus (G6). Apart from “Maxim’s” in Paris it is said to be the best known gastronomical enterprise in the world including the popular beer hall on the ground floor.

Deutsches Museum (H8), is situated on a small island in the middle of the Isar river. This is the largest technical museum in the world. There are numerous working models. A paradise for boys and adults as well! Open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission charge. There is a restaurant in the museum.

Theater am Gärtnerplatz (F8). This theater also belongs to the Bavarian State Theaters, with the emphasis on light opera and operettas.

Haus der Kunst (I3) at Prinzregentenstrasse. Italian, Dutch and French paintings up to the 20th century and numerous German classical works can be seen here. Regular special art exhibitions also take place here. Open daily 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Various entrance fees. Sundays free.

Alte Pinakothek (D1), 27 Barer Strasse, houses one of the world’s finest collections of European paintings from the 14th to the 18th century. Open daily 9 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., Tuesday–Thursday also 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Admission charge. Sundays and holidays free.

Nymphenburg Palace (A4). A visit to this enchanting baroque palace with its vast parks and famous chinaware factory should be included in your program.

There are many more sights, museums, art galleries, theaters, etc.

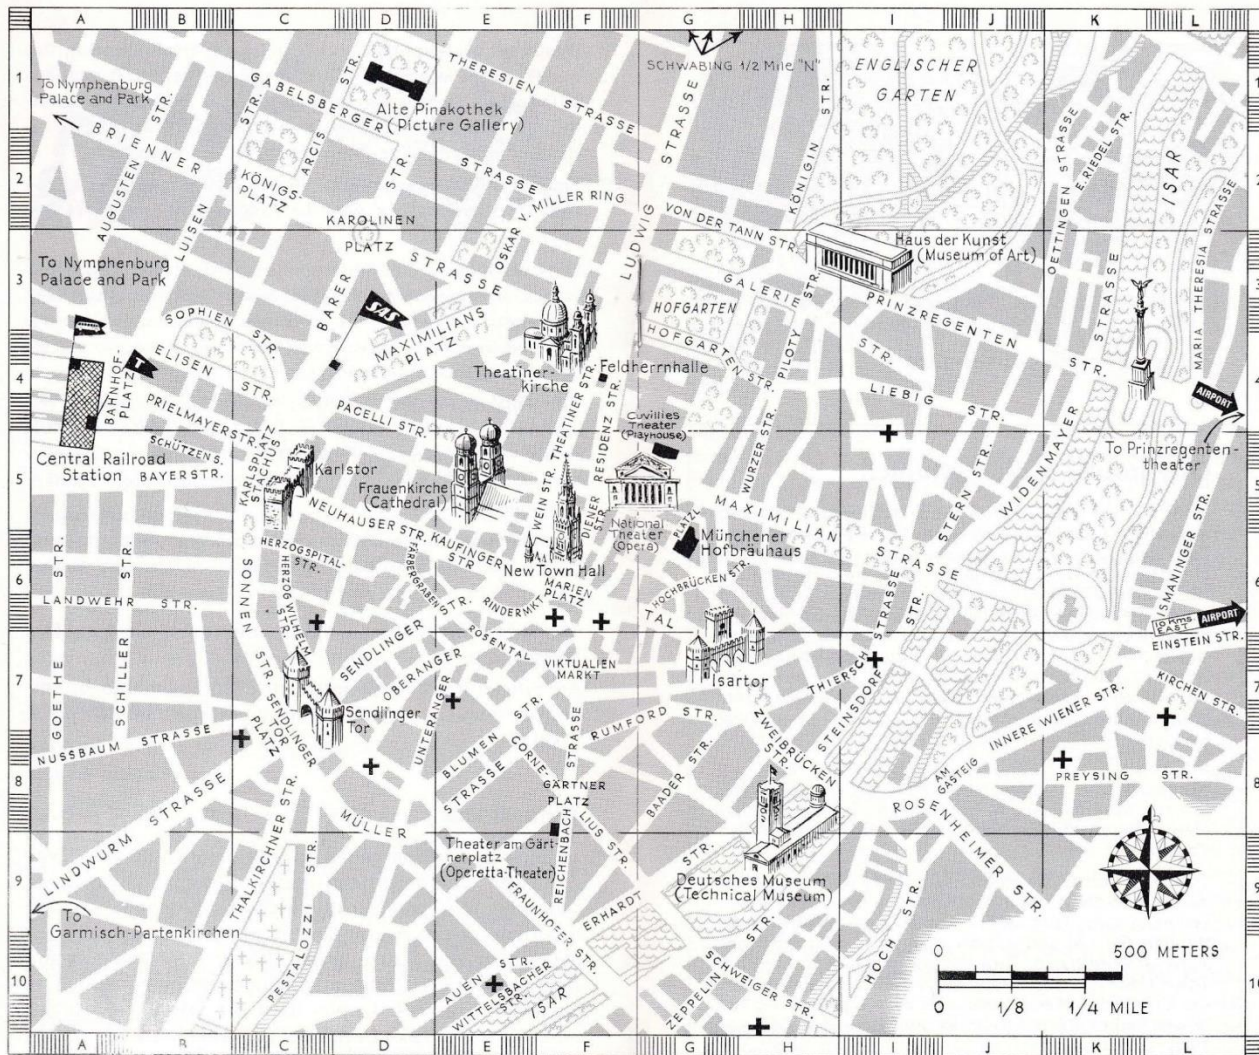

An official monthly program of events is issued by the Tourist Association, available at any newsstand, price DM0.60.

Excursions

Munich is a natural center for excursions into the Bavarian Alps, where you can find storybook villages, half-timbered inns and turreted castles perched high on mountain peaks. Ask any travel agent or your hotel reception to give you a list of regular sightseeing/excursion coach tours. The tours include destinations such as Garmisch and the Upper Bavarian lakes, the Allgäu mountains and Lake Constance, Chiemsee and Berchtes-

From the SAS city office step into Maximiliansplatz and immediately turn right walking as far as Briennerstrasse. Turn right and follow Briennerstrasse to the square, Odeonsplatz. Turn right again here and you will be facing Feldherrnhalle, a copy of the famous Loggia dei Lanze in Florence. Keep to the right and walk past the baroque church, Theatinerkirche, along busy Theatinerstrasse then turn left at the next traffic lights into Perusastrasse. Continue for about 110 yards (100 meters) and you will come to the rebuilt National Theater, the opera house. On your left, inside the spacious former Royal Residence you'll find the beautiful rococo theater, the restored Cuvilliés Theater.

Now walk along Maximilianstrasse – straight ahead you can see Maximilianeum, home of the Bavarian Parliament – before turning right at the narrow street called Kosttor.

This leads you to the Hofbräuhaus am Platzl. From Hofbräuhaus walk along Orlandostrasse until you meet Ledererstrasse. Turn right here and follow this street through the old and narrow part of Munich until you arrive at Burgstrasse. Turn left and you will see the old Town Hall; turn right here and you are in Marienplatz, the City Hall Square dominated by the pseudo-Gothic Neues Rathaus (New City Hall) built between 1867 and 1908. If you are here at 11 a.m. you can watch the Glockenspiel at Rathausurm. Now walk westward into Kaufingerstrasse, Neuhauserstrasse, the main shopping street containing all the major stores and shops. You'll finally end up at Karlstor, one of the old city gates, facing Karlsplatz (or Stachus) one of the busiest traffic squares in Europe. The old building in front of you is the Munich Palace of Justice. Further along you may recognize the Main Railway Station. At Stachus, turn right again and head for Lenbachplatz with the adjoining Maximiliansplatz and you are back at your starting point.

gaden. The famous Oberammergau village is covered by daily coach tours as well as Salzburg in nearby Austria.

Below are some interesting resorts within easy reach of Munich:

Allgäu – the mountainous area in southwestern Bavaria stretching down to the lovely Lake Constance (Bodensee), and the three county border. A rewarding 3 to 4 hours' drive through picturesque countryside brings you to the romantic town of Lindau. On the way there make a detour to the mountain village of Oberstdorf and be sure to drive through Füssen to see the fairy-tale castle of Neuschwanstein, nestling on a mountain summit and the castle of Hohenschwangau. You can make this tour in one day, but you would not regret staying overnight anywhere en route.

Garmisch-Partenkirchen – a famous summer and winter resort at the foot of Germany's highest mountain, the Zugspitze, some 60 miles (100 kms.) from Munich. Easily reached by rail or by way of the Olympia Road. During your stay at Garmisch don't miss taking a trip on the new funicular railway up to the Zugspitz. In 10 minutes the "car" takes you from 2,361 ft. (720 meters) to an altitude of 9,725 ft. (2,966 meters). At the top you can enjoy a fantastic view, have lunch in the restaurant, sun yourself for an hour on the huge terrace – then use another funicular railway to descend to Schneefernerhaus. Sip a coffee in the terrace café while you watch the mountain birds and summer skiers before traveling back on the track-railway (Zugspitzbahn). The railway follows a route through the mountain for half an hour and then passes by the beautiful Lake Eibsee before you arrive back in Garmisch.

Mittenwald – 6 miles (10 kms.) from Garmisch. A delightful town close to the Austrian border, with fresco paintings on the sides of houses which date back to the 18th century. It is famous for violin making and its violin museum.

Oberammergau – 12 miles (20 kms.) from Garmisch. Scene of the world-renowned Passion Play once every ten years. You can visit the Passion playhouse, the wood-carving school with its permanent exhibition, and the fresco-decorated houses. And don't miss the Linderhof Castle nearby built by King Ludwig II of Bavaria between 1875 and 1878. Here you can see valuable furniture, porcelain and Gobelin tapestries as well as a very impressive mirror hall.

Chiemsee – about 40 miles (65 kms.) from Munich on the Autobahn to Salzburg – often referred to as "The Bavarian Ocean"! Chief attraction is the Herrenchiemsee Castle, an imitation of Versailles' built on the largest island of the Chiemsee. For an unforgettable evening arrange your visit during the summer on a Saturday evening when often the castle's gallery of mirrors is illuminated by 4,000 candles for a concert of chamber music.

Berchtesgaden – one of the most popular holiday resorts in Germany. Close by is lovely Lake Königsee. Drive up the Rossfeld mountain road, used for racing events, and you can enjoy a panoramic view of the whole area. You can also visit the salt mines in the Salzbergwerk with the artificial lake or go on to nearby Salzburg, Austria.

The Lakes of Upper Bavaria – the Starnberger Lake, 12 miles (20 kms.) to the south is the nearest lake to Munich and offers good bathing and boating with regular steamer services – Saturdays/Sundays often being dance-cruises! Ammersee Lake 25 miles (40 kms.) west of Munich offers similar facilities.

Kochelsee and Walchensee Lakes 25 miles (40 kms.) south of the city are typical mountain lakes which you pass on the way to Garmisch and Mittenwald. Tegernsee and Schliersee Lakes are extremely popular, the area being ideal for swimming, sailing and mountaineering.

Entertainment and night life

Munich is a wonderful city for entertainment. It is the cultural center of Southern Germany and there is always an opera, operetta, ballet, concert and other international events to attend.

The Bayerische Staatsoper is the Bavarian State Opera in the restored Nationaltheater (G5). The regular season runs from September to July. In July/August the annual Munich Opera Festival takes place at Nationaltheater and Cuvilliés Theater.

The Residenz-Theater (G5) features the famous German dramas of Schiller and Goethe as well as other classical and modern plays presented by the Bayerisches Staatstheater.

If you like operettas, spend an evening in the Theater am Gärtnerplatz (F8). Here the Bayerisches Staatstheater ensemble presents numerous classics such as the "Gypsy Baron", the "Beggar Student", the "Czar's Princess" and "A Night in Venice".

Smaller theaters like Münchner Kammerspiele, Kleine Komödie, Deutsches Theater, Theater Die kleine Freiheit, Münchner Theater an der Briener Strasse, Volkstheater, Münchner Marionettentheater, and Münchner Puppentheater feature all types of plays, drama and comedy. They are less expensive but provide high-quality performances.

Symphony concerts are given in the Herkulesaal of the Residenz (G4) or in the Kongressaal of the Deutsches Museum (H8). Other concerts are staged at the Sophiensaal (B3) and the Hochschule für Musik (C3). Chamber music is presented in the Cuvilliés Theater (G5).

A list of theater performances and concerts is found in the Munich monthly program, the "Offizielles Monatprogramm München" available at any newsstand for DM0.60 and, of course, in all Munich newspapers.

Munich has many cinemas, the more important centered around Stachus (C5). All international films usually have German soundtrack. Some cinemas, however, specialize in original versions of American/English/French/Italian and Spanish films.

Shopping and souvenir hunting

Good purchases include porcelain, photo equipment, optical goods, radio and TV equipment, and clothing. Among the most popular souvenirs are beer steins. Buy

Where to shop? Try the big department stores like Karstadt and Neckermann at Neuhauser/Kaufingerstrasse (D5), Kaufhof at Stachus (C5) or Hertie at Bahnhofplatz (B4), or one of the many speciality shops in the main shopping streets – Neuhauser/Kaufingerstrasse (C5/E6), Stachus (C5), Sonnenstrasse (C5/C7), Sendlingerstrasse (D7/E6) – or maybe more elegant shops of Theaterstrasse (F4/E5), Weinstrasse (E5) and Maximilianstrasse (G5/I6).

Shops are open Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., first Saturday each month 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., other Saturdays 9 a.m. to 12 noon. On Sundays all shops except those at the Airport and the Main Railway Station are closed.

Munich is served by a public transportation system consisting of streetcars and buses. The fare is DM0.80 with 3 interchanges possible, a 3-ride ticket costing DM2. The subway system has been in operation since spring 1972.

About 2,000 taxis operate in the city with a basic fare of DM2 for 0.6 km., each additional kilometer costing DM0.65; central telephone number 21 611. If you want to drive yourself the usual rent-a-car facilities are available in Munich.
