

DRIVING TO TIJUANA

The easiest and most practical way to reach Tijuana Airport is to drive your own car direct to the terminal. By using U.S. Highway 101 or 395, it's no more than a 3½ hour drive from just about anywhere in Southern California. After reaching San Diego, continue on for a few more miles to the U.S.-Mexico border. Tijuana airport is located just a short distance beyond.

Your Mexico flight has been scheduled to allow ample time for you to leave home after breakfast, stop for lunch at one of the many ocean-view restaurants along the way, and still reach the airport in time to clear the necessary Government formalities and prepare for your departure. No Customs or immigration inspection is required when crossing the border into Mexico. Merely inform the official of your intention to clear at the airport.

Adjacent to the Tijuana airport is a 24-hour attended parking lot where you may leave your car for 75¢ a day, full coverage.

However, if you are reaching San Diego by transportation other than your own car, or if you plan to park your car in San Diego garage (average rate for 24 hours is $1.00), you may check-in your tickets, luggage and arrange for your Tourist Card at the Aeronaves office, 131 Broadway. Courtesy Limousine Service leaves that office at 1:15 p.m. PDST, and will carry you as far as the border where you will transfer to waiting Mexican transportation for the airport. Your luggage will be carried direct from San Diego to Tijuana airport by special vehicle.

Similar procedure is performed on return flights, with the exception that you retain your luggage in your possession. Upon reaching the U.S.-Mexico border, a brief U.S. Customs inspection will be made.

Ground transportation on return flights from Mexico will serve the following destinations: U. S. Grant Hotel; Aeronaves de Mexico office; Greyhound Bus Depot; Railroad Station, and the San Diego airport.

Aeronaves de Mexico uniformed passenger service representatives will be available at the border to assist you in any way you desire.
